HETRON and AROPOLTM Resin Selection Guide

Epoxy vinyl ester resins (EVER) were introduced in the 1960s to deliver improved corrosion performance versus standard unsaturated polyester resins and epoxies. Used in a variety of markets today, EVER are highly durable and combine the toughness of epoxy with the easier processability and lower temperature cure of polyesters.

HETRON 922 resin is a non-flame retardant epoxy vinyl ester. HETRON FR992Sb resin can be used to achieve <25 flame spread without mixing additional antimony. HETRON FR998/35 resin can be used to fabricate laminates with improved corrosion resistance. Conditions for these resins are outlined in Ashland's Resin Selection Guide at www.hetron.com.

Ashland, Technical Data Sheet

Epoxy vinyl ester resins (VER) are an important class of high-performance thermoset molding resins. They are produced by the addition of α - β unsaturated carboxylic acids to epoxy resins. The two main types of epoxy resins are bisphenol A diglycidyl ether (DGEBA) and epoxy phenol novolac (EPN). These resins form durable laminates and ...

Vinylester is essentially a styrene modified epoxy resin. It adds excellent strength, rigidity, adhesion, water and chemical resistance. KEEP IN MIND. Epoxy adheres to wood much better than polyester does. To cover wood, a laminate using epoxy resin and 10 oz, cloth will yield a much better job than 10 oz. cloth and polyester resin.

Vinyl ester resins are produced by the reaction ('esterification') between an epoxy resin and an unsaturated monocarboxylic acid. Essentially they comprise a base of polyester resin strengthened with epoxy molecules in the backbone of the molecular chain. Vinyl esters also use peroxides (e.g. MEKP) for hardening.
